New York July 5.—Demands for stocks showed extreme prostration to-day and prices were allowed to run gownwards without any sign of support in opposition on the part of important banking and financial interests. The amount of stocks marketed was not large, as is seen by the day's total transactions. The severity of the extreme declines was not able in that account.

The bear party in the market seemed encouraged by the facility with which they were able to procure stocks to cover the short contracts left open after last week's break in prices. Having covered over the three days's holiday interval they were prepared to put out fresh short lines to-day. The demand was so languid that this selling was easily enecutive. The signs that these stocks were coming back on the market were taken to mean that the larger financial interests were not committing themselves to any effort to navance prices or even to sustain the market at recoveries. The consequence was a drop to near last week a low-level of prices quiet early in the day, but an arrest short of that and a recovery later.

The renewal of the depression was not accounted for by any striking new development in the situation.
